

Murder, manslaughter charges among indictments

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County Sheriff's office continued serving warrants on grand jury indictments this week, adding one murder and three manslaughter charges to the list.

Among those served were the two Waveland policeman accused of beating Tommy Monroe Tyler Jr. while in custody; the 17-year-old Waveland resident accused of injuring 17-month-old Junell Lynell George; a 20-year-old Pass Christian resident charged as a principal with Nancy Joseph Gambill in the December 4, 1992 death of Randy R. Juliao; and the Shoreline park resident who allegedly shot at deputy Travis Foreman. Waveland police officers Tony Lydell Stogner, 26, 106 Brentwood Avenue, Petal, Miss., and Thomas James Antoine, 27, 198 Auderer Blvd. #33, Waveland, were both charged with manslaughter in the September 25, 1992 death of Tyler.

Tyler was charged with simple possession of marijuana, public drunkenness and failure to obey a police officer.

An autopsy report by New Orleans pathologist Paul McGary indicated cause of death from a heart attack as a result of a long-standing heart condition.

Tyler's family contended he was beaten while in custody.

Alton James Terry, 17, 504 Amar St., Waveland, was charged with manslaughter for the August 25, 1992 death of George.

An autopsy performed on the toddler following her death revealed a ruptured liver, fractured skull and several bruises, as well as evidence of sexual abuse.

At the time of the child's death, she and her mother were residing with Terry.

Joe Douglas Spiers West, alias, Joe Douglas

Spiers, 20, 28326 Deschamps Road, Pass Christian, was served with charges as principal in the murder of Juliao at Bell Creek Road.

Upon arrival by deputies, Glasbill was reported to be standing outside the residence with a gun in his possession.

Spiers was not arrested during the initial investigation.

Michael O. Zweifel Sr., 46, 5014 Wood St. Shoreline Park, was indicted for aggravated assault on a police officer on December 8, 1992.

Airport preparations dominate P&H meeting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission was told Monday of Stennis Airport's preparation to begin welcoming overnight visitors.

Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen reported within the past two weeks the commission has been contacted by other airlines wishing to establish flights to the airport.

One of the stumbling blocks has been equipment needs for full service operations.

Commission members approved two contracts; one with Dave Reuscher for meteorological services and another with Pearl River Community College for vocational training reimbursement.

The contract with Reuscher was approved as a personal services agreement for one year and will include meteorological observations; meteorological flight packages; and aviation consultation.

Reuscher has 20 years experience as a meteorologist with the U.S. Navy.

The contract with Pearl River Community College presently addresses the Port and Harbor funded training of volunteer firemen for crash, fire and rescue needs at the airport and for the security training of sheriff's department deputies.

Olsen explained the commission will be reimbursed by the state, up to $11 per hour, for the upgrading of skills.

He added, as future needs grow so may the possibilities of various vocational courses not available in this area, such as airplane mechanics.

Olsen introduced security head Ronald Rygiel, temporarily assigned from the county

Search continues for missing man

BY LIZ HAAS
The search for Perre Quintini, 65, the missing Bay St. Louis fisherman, continues while investigators have no further developments in the case.

Quintini's boat was found Saturday floating against the Little Lake bank near the Mississippi Sound with fishing gear and a life preserver.

Hancock County Sheriff's Office Chief Deputy Delbert Seay said, "We've been searching the waters since Saturday along with the Bureau of Marine Resources, the Coast Guard, the Civil Defense, St. Tammany Parish Sheriff's Department and friends of the missing man and have found nothing."

"We've suspended our search until further developments, but the St. Tammany Sheriff's Department has searched every day and continues to search," said Petty Officer Coby Wilkins with the New Orleans Coast Guard.

George McNamara assists Jerry Hollman, lead singer with the Phillip Michael Band.

Unusual promotion benefits unusual man

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Before my eyes could adjust to the darkness of the bar, I was directed past a dance floor and towards the blaring sounds of a Jerry Jeff Walker song.

"George is singing with the band," I was initially informed.

There before me were two men singing with all abandon, "I want to go home with the armadillo..."

I correctly assumed the one without the guitar, and with rather long and straggly salt and pepper hair, was George; the cancer victim, the indomitable spirit described in a recent quarter page advertisement which credits his longevity to "wild women, cold beer and good friends."

George McNamara is much younger than my first impression of him.

Exiting the bar and the regaining my vision, I saw the face of a happy, lucky child of the 60's. McNamara is 46.

Descending Beach Blvd., the parade will travel to Lafitte Drive and continue up Central Avenue to St. Joseph Street where it will disband.

"We're expecting about 70 units, and we'll be throwing cups, beads, candy and cabbage," said O'Laigasse.

Beach Front Fest may fall by wayside

BY JANET MCQUEEN
The fate of the annual Beach Front Festival hangs in the balance when the Bay St. Louis Business Association decides whether or not to co-sponsor the event.

According to last year's sponsor, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, there are not enough helping hands to go around to ensure its success.

Chamber executive director Cindy Vernon said, "We could not find enough interest out there to commit to it. Last year we had to reach into the community to find people with the know-how to put it together."

"This year, everyone seems to be burned out. It is the same reason the Bay Business Association gave it up the year before."

"The Chamber just can't obligate to take this on by ourselves," said Vernon.

A 6 p.m. meeting was scheduled Wednesday to discuss whether the Bay St. Louis group will "disband or reorganize" and participate in the Beach Front Festival, Christmas in the Bay and Concerts in the Park.

Former BBA president Ruth Thompson stated the concerts will continue with or without the organization, as the City of Bay St. Louis is committed to continue the popular community entertainment.

The Beach Front Festival was conceived 14 years ago by then downtown businessman Pat Murphy as a tool to revitalize business and to attract attention to that area.

"My idea was to draw a number of people to the downtown area, so they could see what we have," he said.

In years since it has evolved into a family-oriented event, with many activities for children.

BOMB THREATS CONTINUE

Eckerd Drugs on Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis received a bomb threat from an anonymous caller at 10:50 a.m. Monday saying it was planted in the store to go off at 1:30 p.m., according to Bay St. Louis Police Detective Tom Burleson.

"They immediately called our office to report the call," Burleson reported, "We searched the store and found nothing."

He said Eckerd Drugs opted to remain closed until 2 p.m. to be safe.

Burleson reported that there were no leads in their investigation.

The Bay Police Department is jointly investigating the case with the Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms Bureau.

"Also, we were notified by the Harrison County Sheriff's Office that there was another bomb threat to the Bay bridge at 1:17 p.m. Monday. The caller said the bomb was going off at 1:30 p.m.," said Burleson.

He reported a search of the Bay bridge by the ATF, Bay Police Department, the Bureau of Marine Resources and the Highway Patrol turned up nothing.

"We have no leads and the case is still under investigation with the our department and the ATF," said Burleson.

FIRES SET

Frank Delsied, Hancock Tower crew chief and dispatcher, reported three fires set Monday totaling damages to 120 acres.

Delsied dispatched the Bayside Fire Department at 1:40 p.m. Monday to a fire he spotted on Lower Bay Road and Herring Bay Road near the Tennessee Gas Pipeline.

The fire damaged 98 acres of non-forest land and put many trailers in danger, according to Delsied.

Delsied reported that the fire was set intentionally and that the Bureau of Marine Resources and the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries will be investigating the case along with the Hancock Tower to catch the arsonists.

At 1:35 Delsied dispatched Post 58 Fire Department to a fire across from Seals Gunshop off CC Road in Standard.

The fire damaged seven acres of land and threatened a house, Delsied reported.

He said the fire was set intentionally.

At 3:20 Delsied dispatched the Kiln Fire Department to a fire east off Fire Tower Road, one-fourth mile off 603 East.

"The fire damaged 15 acres of land and took almost two hours for the two tractor crews to extinguish it because of land conditions," said Delsied.

He reported the fire was set for incendiary means.

Delsied said, "A vehicle was reported leaving the area of the fires in the northern part of the county to Forester Mark Jamieson by several people and we are currently investigating all three fires."

"This is the worst time of the year for fires," he said.

Jamieson reported, "People who are burning trash should be extra careful because the grass and pines are very dry at this time of the year and we are experiencing gusty winds and low humidity that add to that. It's easier for a fire to get away from you now than during the rest of the year."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Everything will be the color of green in Waveland for the annual Civic Association St. Patrick's Day parade on Saturday.

It will be one day of the year when the spelling of some names will change, such as O'Firlots, O'Rappolds, O'Hubbards, O'Colsons, O'Weidmans, O'Masons, O'Gexes, O'Varnells, O'Bourgeoises, O'Yarboroughs, O'Ladners, O'Massons, etc.

The parade begins at 2 p.m. at the intersection of Waveland and Central Avenues.

The parade, according to Jay Lagasse, parade chairman, says there should be over 70 units this year.

The parade will proceed down Central to Coleman Avenue, Coleman to Beach Boulevard, Beach to Lafitte, Lafitte to Central, and Central to the Terrace to disband.

I understand there will be cups, cabbages, beads, trinkets and all types of throws. See you at the parade.

With the beautiful weather, it has been tough working indoors this week.

Those sunny days and moonlit nights have just been breathtaking.

Our mild winter has really helped our blooming trees and shrubs.

Azaleas are bursting out all over the place, many started blooming as far back as December.

Japanese magnolias are in full bloom, as are other trees and shrubs.

Many fruit trees are in bloom too, such as peach, pear, plum, apple, etc.

I still have not seen a pecan tree sprouting yet, and as the oldtimers will tell you, winter isn't over until the pecan trees sprout. Look out for another frost.

The rains delayed me getting potatoes into the ground this year. I did manage to get the ground prepared (compost pile) this week, and I am hoping it is not too late to get a good crop.

I am hoping the sunshine will be around for a few more weeks so we can get our other vegetables planted. The ground has been really too wet to work properly.

Registration will get underway for the BAYS Men's 35-and-Older Softball League on Saturday, noon to 3 p.m. at the Commagere Park.

Among the organizers for the league are Harry Farve, John Pucheu and Gary Yarborough.

It is my understanding players will be divided into positions, and members for each team will be drawn from the groups. This is to divide up the talent equally among all the teams, Farve reports.

I know there are a lot of those who played softball for many years, and who knows, some may want to come out of 'retirement' and join the league.

Harry said the league will offer a fun time for all. There is a $10 registration fee.

Some 'wise guys' are reporting the local drug stores will need to get an extra supply of liniment for stretched muscles and bruises.

Best of luck to the new league. For further information call Farve at 467-2625; Pucheu, 467-4639; or Yarborough, 467-9436.

Saturday is the big cleanup day for Hancock County, so do not forget to put it on your calendar.

It is a time to spruce up your yard, roadway and neighborhood.

Supplies such as plastic bags can be picked up at the Hancock County Walking Track in front of Hancock Medical Center on Saturday between the hours of 8 a.m. until noon.

This Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Beautification effort also involves the Bay-Waveland and Diamondhead garden clubs, and Girls Scouts will be decorating litter barrels at the walking track.

We need to have our community looking good for the annual Spring Pilgrimages for Bay-Waveland, Diamondhead, the Welcome Center and NASA.

Please do your part.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Prescription for deficit reduction

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran says the prescription for reducing the federal deficit is simple:

There is no substitute for resisting overspending. You have to draw the line and say: 'We are not able to appropriate, we are not able to commit the allocation of federal funds over a certain level.'

We have to do a better job of making sure that each program has a specific purpose, that each program has to be worthwhile. We have to eliminate waste and unnecessary spending.

'We just need to show that we have the will and the courage to say 'no.' That's what it's going to take.

'We can enact a lot of cute resolutions and changes in procedures, but it all boils down to having the willingness and the courage and the political stamina to stay with the program of deficit reduction by saying no to excessive spending.'

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

By Governor Kirk Fordice

State bridge repair—It can't wait another year

The State of Mississippi is indeed fortunate in 1993 to have the uncommon luxury of a projected budget surplus of $130-million for next year.

Just 13 short months ago, I was forced to cut $75 million from state agencies to compensate for yet another budget shortfall brought about by paying recurring expenses with one-time money.

This brief chronology should only serve as a reminder of just how unreliable our state's budget can be from year to year.

It is with this "roller-coaster scenario" in mind that I will be asking each of the members of the Mississippi Legislature to carefully consider how to allocate the extra revenue expected for FY '94.

Last week, I set forth a plan of priorities for this budget surplus. Among other items, I proposed to use $49 million of this one-time money on a one-time project—the restoration of Mississippi's crumbling bridge infrastructure.

Incredibly, at the end of the 20th Century, we have more than 2,000 city and county bridges that have been classified as "dangerous" and in need of immediate attention.

This means one out of every six bridges that you and your family might cross on a weekend trip, traveling to school or driving back and forth to work, could be potentially hazardous.

Transportation officials report that there is at least one bridge in each county in the state of Mississippi that is deficient. This means that in each of our 82 counties there is a school bus that may travel over a substandard bridge every school day.

Since Oct. 7, people have died in the state of Mississippi due to faulty bridges. At this tragic pace, more than one Mississippian could die every month on state bridges if action is not taken soon.

As if the safety of our citizens was not enough, there is also an economic factor. With stronger bridges in place in the state of Mississippi, more goods can be shipped through counties and cities that were otherwise thought to be unreachable due to weak bridges. This could greatly increase a much-needed stream of commerce through our state.

This is not a new idea. Highway experts and Mississippi travelers alike have pointed to the state's worsening bridge erosion for years.

The problem has been that using infrastructure improvement money to fix potholes and spread shiny new pavement is more politically appealing than restoring an existing bridge.

In 1993, with this $130-million window of opportunity available, Mississippi government officials should live up to our sworn responsibility of ensuring the well-being of the people we represent. If this matter is left unattended to yet another year, we will not be fulfilling that sacred obligation.

Yes, there are a handful of needy state groups requesting attention this year, and some rightfully so. But our government would make a painful mistake to once again look away as the very foundation of the state of Mississippi deteriorates into ancient ruins.

We must not continue the scam of paying for recurring expenses with one-time money. We, as public servants, cannot look our constituents in the eyes and tell them such a process is in their best interest.

My thanks go out to the many legislators who have already pledged to me their support for this proposal. To those who have not yet committed, I can only say this: Let us not subscribe to the mentality that "we will cross that bridge when we come to it." Because one day, that bridge just may not be there anymore.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fitch maintains criticism is of bad government

To the Editor:

I dislike writing long letters, but Jesse St. Croix's tirade against me forces me to abandon my usual brevity. I really do admire Mr. St. Croix's ability to use high-falutin words to demonstrate his erudition. Disingenuous! Yup, that's a real hum-dinger.

Mr. St. Croix's list of indictments makes me sound as if I'm opposed to everything, including God and motherhood. Everyone who knows me knows that what I really oppose is waste, inefficiency and abuse of governmental power, all of which we have plenty in Waveland. If Mr. St. Croix is of the opinion that I'm the only person in Waveland who is critical of Mayor Firlot, he has some surprises coming.

Mr. St. Croix is right in that my first dispute with the mayor was over the Animal Commission. The commission members and the Humane Society were those who were responsible for the shelter being built originally, and they donated hundreds of hours of their time improving the care of stray animals in this city.

We operated the shelter at a net cost to the City of Waveland of about $5,000 per year. The current budget contains a net cost of $17,200 for its operation under city management. I leave it to the readers to judge whether the mayor made a good deal.

Mr. St. Croix apparently does not understand the role of the city auditors in the budget process. They supply technical know-how only and neither approve or disapprove the end product. I think anyone would be hard pressed to find those who believe that a budget which projects expenditures in excess of revenues in the amount of $816,332 is "just fine" fiscal management.

I believe that Mr. St. Croix is being a bit disingenuous himself in not stating the real reason for his letter and the source of his information, much of which was scarcely known outside of City Hall.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Cut spending first

Throughout our nation Americans are clamoring for spending cuts. Like a majority of South Mississippians and many members of Congress, I'm of this same mindset. Our nation is now more than $4.1

trillion in debt and the numbers continue to climb year after year. That amounts to a debt of $16,400 for every man, woman and child, or $65,000 for a family of four.

While the problem of deficits are not new, the magnitude of the deficits during the past 15 years is reason for alarm. If we do nothing to control spending, our country is headed for disaster. We have no choice but to balance the budget.

To achieve this goal, we must reduce the past budget deficits to which we have become dangerously accustomed. The first place I would like to see cuts is in areas of wasteful spending habits that we can no longer afford.

I have voted against wasteful government programs such as foreign aid ($25 billion), and the 1989 Congressional pay increase. During the 103rd Congress I will continue to push for more fiscal responsibility.

Additionally, the House of Representatives voted to decrease its own funding by 5.7 percent. This year I intend to support, and Congress is most likely to pass, legislation to reduce the Congressional budget by an additional 6 percent or more.

I strongly support this plan and many others to reduce wasteful spending in Washington. In addition to this most recent Congressional action, I have tried to do my part by having returned over $365,000 out of my Congressional budget to the government in the past three years.

STREET TALK

What do you think of the proposed state bill to cap Circuit and Chancery Clerk salaries not to exceed the governor's salary?

"I like it. The salaries should be capped and any additional monies generated by the offices should be directed towards giving other personnel raises."

Wanda Fouasnon

Doris Bowers

"I think that's a good deal. The potential to make too much money is there. Even $75,600 is still too much for the job."

Kim Henderson

"They should put a cap on it by all means. There is a potential for too much money going to one person when it should be used for the general good."

Sheriff's office to assist in the organization of security and implementation of air-carrier operations at the airport.

Rygiel was a commercial airline pilot for 21 years prior to working for the sheriff's department. His work for the commission includes readying of the airport.

He said, "Right now we can accommodate daytime, as well as overnight passenger flights."

"Depending on what services the airline will need upon arrival, we can supply those needs upon request."

Rygiel said, the commission is currently negotiating for its first overnight flight, anticipated by the end of next week.

To upgrade the airport's potential for services, the following purchases were made: a 1983 step van for baggage transportation; a baggage loader or conveyor belt; a baggage cart; and a utility cart for machine maintenance-type of equipment transportation.

Plans for future purchases include steps for airplane boarding and deboarding; a lavatory cart; a water cart; an aircraft medium sized tug for relocation for planes; various tow bars; fire extinguishers; a 90-KVA power cart to supply ground power to airplanes; and large push-back tug or tracker.

The recent donation of a $26,500 baggage x-ray machine by Casino Magic was praised as a savings to the county and example of the industry's full support.

"Dave will be needing various meteorological equipment," Rygiel added, "once we hit the magic number of 50,001 passengers within one year. Then we will be required to upgrade all operational aspects of the airport, from security on down."

Olsen commented negotiations are underway with several airlines which have contacted the commission about landing space and flight availability.

As of this week, Stennis Airport has welcomed 373 passengers to Hancock County.

Olsen reported two taxi companies, Taxi Cabs Inc. and Merit's Way to Go Cab Service, and two bus lines, King Charter Service and Coastliner, received commission permitting for operations at the airport.

The commission approved the purchase of 35 acres of land for $5,100 from Merchants Bank at the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Olsen reported the bank wished to dispose of the property which is 60 percent wetlands and waterfront property.

Hot Sticks Inc. was given a

$5,000 credit towards the $200,000 lease/purchase price of property and building at Stennis Airport.

The credit was given for compensation for improvements made by the company to the building.

I also am in favor of a hiring freeze on federal employees. This hiring freeze would not terminate one single government employee, but would remain in effect until the desired reduction is achieved through attrition, retirement, etc.

We are now forced to pay for the tax cuts of the early 1980's that helped boost the annual deficits and ballooned the national debt. In the 1980's, the deficit almost tripled as a result of huge tax cuts for those in the highest income brackets and by halving corporate taxes.

The tax cuts would not have been harmful had they been matched by spending cuts. Instead, Congress and the President increased defense, Social Security, Medicare and other programs.

In the past three years many South Mississippians have requested that I do everything I can to limit what we spend on Congress, the White House, food stamps, welfare, and foreign aid.

The grim reality is that if each of these programs were eliminated, not cut, the projected deficit for 1994 would still be $269 billion. While I support reductions in each of these programs, there is absolutely no way the budget can be balanced without increased revenues.

I want to assure everyone that it is my every intention that Congress cut spending and eliminate wasteful programs before any tax increases are enacted.

McDowell performs at River Extravaganza

Country music recording artist Ronnie McDowell will be the guest entertainer for the sixth annual Pearl River Community College River Extravaganza.

Tickets for the event — scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. Sunday, March 30 in the White Coliseum — are $25 per person. The event will include entertainment, food from 15 area restaurants and an auction.

"Given the huge success of his recent single, 'Unchained Melody,' and the impact it has had on his career, we're fortunate that Ronnie is coming back to the Extravaganza," said organizer Donna Wilson, executive director of the Pearl River Development Foundation.

McDowell was the headliner for the third Extravaganza back in 1990. Soon after his appearance on the PRC campus, the success of 'Unchained Melody' on radio and with video air-play drove his career to new heights. In 1992 he worked 150 dates, including concerts in the 5,000

Irish coffee

The big bass drum in our modern St. Patrick's Day parades can be traced back to the days of the saint himself, so historians tell us.

On his journeys throughout Ireland, St. Patrick supposedly was preceded by a drummer, whose constant pounding had a powerful effect upon the imaginative Irish! St. Patrick also used the drum to drive the snakes from the Emerald Isle, according to still another legend. So, sound the drum and let's celebrate!

St. Patrick's Day is that exuberant occasion when just about everybody in sight becomes Irish for the day and proudly takes to the Wearin' O' the Green; and a scant two days later, we celebrate St. Joseph's Day! Already, many hands are busy preparing the mountains of food which will grace the St. Joseph's Day Altars in thanksgiving to the patron saint of Italy.

So, let's get ready for the dual celebration! Cook up your corned beef and cabbage for St. Patrick's Day, as is so popular a meal for the day in our country; or add a bit of salmon as they do in Ireland. And, whatever you do, let's wind up with generous sips of:

"REALLY IRISH" IRISH COFFEE

(This recipe, which I've used for years, comes straight from Erin by way of a delightful book, "Traditional Irish Recipes," published by the O'Brien Press of Dublin, no less!) For each serving:

- 1 double measure good Irish whiskey (I use one measure, or jigger)
- 1 cup strong, hot black coffee
- 1 Tbsp. "pouring cream" or "double" (heavy) cream
- 1 heaped tsp. sugar

There are variations, of course, when it comes to Irish Coffee, but most are in agreement as to the basic rite: first, warm a stemmed glass, put in the sugar and enough very hot coffee to dissolve it, stirring well.

Adding the whiskey, then fill the glass to within an inch of the brim with more coffee. Next, holding a teaspoon across the glass (or cup) pour the cold cream over it ever so carefully, slowly, slowly, so that it floats on the surface of the coffee, and you sip the whiskey-laced coffee through the velvety cream, which, of course, is NOT to be stirred in!

(If you prefer, you may use a tablespoon of whipped cream; and some substitute bourbon for the Irish whiskey).

Pasta cooking techniques

In the last seven years Americans have increased their pasta consumption by about 20 percent. We enjoy the sauces and flavorings that go with pasta, but good pasta begins with the cooking. Pasta should be cooked al dente, or firm to the

Follow these success tips for perfect al dente pasta every —Add salt to the water (1 tablespoon per gallon) to help keep pasta firm.

—Use 1 gallon of water for each pound of pasta so pasta cooks uniformly.

—Put oil in the water only if you plan to make a cold pasta salad, as it makes pasta slippery. Hot sauces cling much better to pasta boiled in salted water with no oil.

—Water should always be at a full boil when pasta is added, and it should remain at boiling during the entire cooking time.

—When pasta is cooked, it will float to the top of the water. Test the pasta that is on top of the water for doneness.

—Draining pasta is an important step in preparing pasta dishes, as it instantly stops the cooking. Draining should be done quickly to prevent pasta from sticking together or cooling down.

—Never rinse pasta after draining, unless making a cold pasta dish. After draining, immediately mix warm pasta with sauce and serve at once.

Late in 1986, he was diagnosed with colon cancer. After receiving chemotherapy and radiation treatments, he was in remission for two years.

In May of 1989 a liver scan revealed severe damage, and he was told he had three to six months remaining in his life.

While relating his story, McNamara excused himself, went to a car and removed a bottle of vodka from the floor board. He poured some of the vodka into a cup, closed the bottle and replaced it in the discreet location.

As I watched his actions, he began to explain, "They gave me 500 half-grain morphine tablets to take after telling me I didn't have long to live."

"I couldn't take them. They made me feel even sicker, so I flushed them down the toilet. 'Have you ever heard of Bromkin's Formula?' he asked. 'It's a mixture of morphine and vodka they used to give terminally ill people. All you would have to do is give it to them, and let them go.'"

"Well, I just use the vodka half of the formula," he said. "It helps to take the edge off the pain."

Upon learning his prognosis, he decided to make a trip home to Wilmington, Del., to see his mom. To his surprise, she had moved to Austin, Texas.

Limited in funds, he went to work as a licensed psychiatric technician. He holds a bachelor of science in psychology and is a licensed vocational nurse (LVN), as well.

"I stayed there two months working in the health care profession," he commented, "until I had enough money to go on to Austin."

In Austin, McNamara would meet the man who would become his friend and brother, Bill Kolstad, and lead him to the shores of Mississippi.

Kolstad said he had grown up in Bay St. Louis, having moved there with his family at age 10.

He purchased The Killin' Time bar on Kiln-DeLisle Road in December and renamed it in honor of the previous establishment.

Within a short time, a new family of friends gathered and today Georgia's is known as a no-nonsense kind of place.

"People come here to dance and have a good time," Kolstad emphasized. "There are no sec-fulfill McNamara's final wish. "I want to be cremated because I don't want to be eaten by worms," McNamara stated. "Afterwards, my friends will take me out past the islands and I will become part of the Gulf. I like the idea of being in the water."

As McNamara walked around, a definite fatigue was recognizable in his gait.

His girlfriend Tammie Shoemaker went over to him and led him to a table where he sat to rest.

As McNamara continued to engage in passing conversations a woman at the bar commented, "Look how he just loves people."

She said, "One evening a man was dancing and fell to the floor in a seizure. George got down on the floor and hugged him and rubbed him until he began to come back around."

"And when they got the man back in a chair and George back in a chair, George's whole body was shaking."

"This man loves people. He treats them with respect, and I hate to see him die."

There were large burly men patting George on the shoulders and hugging him as the afternoon wore on.

A story was repeated at the bar, out of earshot of George, of how he was protective of friends and people who visited the bar, even to the point of endangering his own life in their defense.

According to Kolstad, the Texas Road Kill Barbecue was a success. Though it did not generate all the funds needed for McNamara's cremation, it did generate one unmeasurable by-product, George's smile.

McNamara confided time is short for him, as he knows his body and the cancer is beginning to spread.

"When it happens," he described, "I'm going to go down to the water and just lie there on the beach, in my shorts."

For now, McNamara says his greatest pleasure in life is hugging his girlfriend.

"If I could do anything else, I guess I would like to bungee jump and hang-glide," he briefly fantasized.

He told of how he was leaving this life having experienced much.

"I have parachuted and I was a surfing fool. I lived in California on and off for 20 years of my life."

"I traveled to Alaska and worked on crab boats, and coming back spent two weeks picking apples in Washington State."

"I have seen every state in the union. I've been there. I've had all the rest of it."

Outside, Michael Robinson, a first time customer at Georgia's held out a hand in friendship to McNamara saying, "I just wanted to meet you, George. You've just got to meet a person who has that kind of charisma."

George firmly grasped the offered hand and smiling from ear-to-ear and thanked the man for coming by.

"This man loves people. He treats them with respect, and I hate to see him die."

Kolstad owned a bar called Georgia's Fast Car Bar in Cedar Park, just outside of Austin.

"When I first met George," Kolstad confided, "I told him I was a happily married man who did not fool around on my wife."

"So it would be his responsibility to see to it that every single woman who walked in here was made to feel welcome."

"And I have to admit, George has done a good job all these years."

McNamara accompanied the Kolstads to Bay St. Louis this past fall when it was discovered that Kolstad's father was ill.

and chances here. I have a sign behind the bar which states, 'We support the local Sheriff's Department, and if you cause trouble, so will you.'

This particular afternoon no one was causing trouble. The Phillip Michael Band was playing at no cost, in honor of George; Colonial Bank, Biloxi Wholesale Produce Company and friends donated the infamous 'Road Kill', alias turkey, pork, beef and chicken, for the barbecue; and cold draft beer was being sloshed down the dry throats of the many who came to help raise the funds needed to

Ask the Veteran's Service Center

By Donald Mauffray
Veteran's Service Officer

By Donald Mauffray, CVSO
Q. I understand that there are presidential certificates that commemorate a veteran's death. My husband was a World War II veteran who died several years ago. Would I be able to obtain one?

A. Yes. The Presidential Memorial Certificate is a parchment certificate with a calligraphic inscription expressing the nation's grateful recognition of a veteran's service.

Certificates are issued in the name of honorably discharged, deceased veterans. Eligible recipients include next of kin, other relatives and friends.

Other family members and friends may request a certificate in the name of an eligible veteran. The veteran may have died at any time in the past.

The local VA regional office generally originates the application for a certificate without a request from the next of kin. But when a service member dies on active duty, or if the veteran was not receiving a VA benefit, the next of kin may request a certificate.

Requests should be accompanied by a copy of a document to establish honorable service. VA regional offices can assist in applying for certificates.

Q. My husband was a naval officer killed in World War II and buried at sea. I never remarried and would like to be buried in a VA cemetery. May I?

A. Yes. The widow or widower of a member of the Armed Forces lost or buried at sea, or officially determined to be in a missing or missing-in-action status, or whose remains have been donated to science or cremated, is eligible for burial in a national cemetery.

Q. What are the requirements for receiving an education advance payment check?

A. One-half time training, agreement by the school to handle the check, request for the advance payment and receipt by VA of enrollment certificate at least 30 days before classes begin.

Q. I have been in the Army Reserves since 1989. Am I entitled to payments under the Montgomery GI Bill (Selected Reserve) for attendance at a vocational welding school?

A. You may be eligible for this type of training. However, you will need to provide evidence that, since October 1, 1990, you have re-enlisted or extended your enlistment to have six years of obligated service remaining after the re-enlistment or extension is signed.

Q. My VA pension is being deposited directly into my bank account. I have decided to change banks. How do I get the direct deposit changed to my new bank?

A. Ask your new bank to complete a new SF-1199A, Direct Deposit Sign-Up Form, and send it to your VA Regional Office. Be sure not to close your account at the old bank until the direct deposit starts at your new bank. It should take between 30 to 60 days for the change to take effect.

Q. I am a veteran with a 30-percent service-connected disability. My wife has become so severely disabled that we must have someone with her at all times. Are there any additional benefits available through the VA due to her disability?

A. A service-connected disabled veteran rated 30 percent or more is entitled to receive a special allowance for a spouse who is in need of the aid and attendance of another person.

IN AND AROUND DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

GOAL FOR 1993

The Diamondhead Business and Professional Association, which meets on the fourth Thursday of each month at 8 a.m. at the Day's Inn, needs the support of every professional and business owner in Diamondhead to achieve their 1993 goal.

They want residents of the area to know about all of the goods and services that are available to them in their own neighborhood.

To unite the business community of Diamondhead, everyone needs to pool their ideas, resources and voices. Remember, voices have choices.

The association has chosen a very fine slate of dedicated folks for their board for the year '93, and under the leadership of president Jon Ritten, plans to make the neighborhood and community better for everyone.

Note: The association will be having a 'Business After Hours' every other month. Secretary Mary Kipping, owner of Corporate Cheer at 12-A Leisure Time Drive across from Nauticus, will host the first one March 18 from 5-7 p.m.

DBPA invites the business and professional folks in the area to join them.

GARDEN CLUB

Under the guidance of chairman Johnnie Boatright, the Diamondhead Garden Club will have its annual flower show Tuesday, March 23 at the Community Center.

The next day, March 24, begins the Pilgrimage, so guests may start the day viewing the beautiful entries of this event.

Theme of the show is "By the Sea."

On March 10 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Alice Brameyer will hold a flower show workshop to show techniques and share her expertise. She's had lots of experience being a flower show judge many times. Anyone who is interested is welcome.

DIAMONDHEAD LIBRARY

Please visit and support the library located in the Community Center. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The staff asks that you please return overdue books, etc. as soon as possible.

AARP

AARP met Tuesday, March 2 at 3 p.m. at the Community Center. Those in attendance heard a very informative talk on money management for retirement years from Mickey Jordan, a chartered financial consultant.

Mildred Buerkle talked briefly about current income tax changes.

Irma Checkfield will be chairman for the telephone committee to make residents aware of legislation affecting senior citizens, so members can write their congressman on certain issues. Stay tuned for more information.

SUPPORT

If you've lost a friend, relative, loved one or spouse and feel your world tumbling down, there is a lovely red-haired lady in Diamondhead, Chris Sigut, who wants to help and listen. Call 255-3598.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Fish are waiting if you can stand the gnats.

It's time to go fishin' y'all. In case you haven't noticed, there is a new type fish that seems to have appeared in great abundance over the past few weeks. They are so plentiful that I have been having trouble trying to figure out what type of tackle to recommend to use to catch these new fish.

Two things I do know—they are in great abundance and I feel sure you will need ultra light tackle to catch them.

As of this writing there is no limit, and as far as I can tell, there is no move afoot to create a limit.

That's good, 'cause I have always heard that if you want to reduce the population of something you should say that there is no limit... they are good to eat... and they are easy to catch.

The only thing that seems to be missing, to reduce the population is, there needs to be some type of bounty on these new fish.

There are so many of these new creatures that nothing seems to be able to reduce their population. I guess that is why they call them gnats.

I guess the big boy upstairs had some reason for putting gnats on this world. It must be a "real" good reason because these things can really create hell on earth.

Anyway, if you can stand the gnats, there are fish to be caught.

As I have stated in previous weeks, the drum fishing has been super great, spectacular and otherwise pretty dog gone good.

Many fishermen pass on the "convict" and they don't realize what they are missing. These fish are really hard fighters, and pound for pound, they seem to fight longer than most other fish.

They are a great fish to go after if you are introducing a youngster to saltwater fishin'. "Convict" fish are easy to catch most of the time, and the places they "hangout around" generally stick out of the water (pilings).

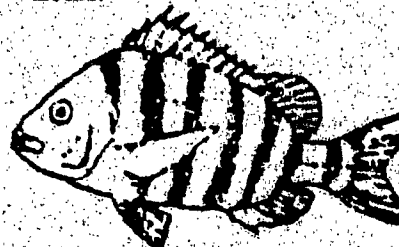

I have talked about what to use on sheephead and drum several times. Let it suffice to say that you just need to rig up for bottom fishin' to catch these fish.

Two of what had to be the world's most dedicated "convict" fish fishermen were seen last week trying their luck. I use the word luck very loosely, as anyone who goes fishing in a 12-foot flat boat with only Armstrong motors, in the rain, in the cold, in the fog, and in weather so rotten miserable that even the ducks stay home, has to hope for luck just to keep from having the men in the white coats have long talks with them.

Matter of fact, the fog was so bad that they told me that they tried to use radar, and could not find the end of the pier, so they were forced to use Loran just to find the end of the pier. Right!

Jason Blanchette and Dave Harvill were able to hide from the men in the white coats long enough to tell me that they have been averaging about 20 to 25 drum and sheephead per hour between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. on every day that they have fished the long piers between Ladner's pier in Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

The "convict fish" have been averaging between 3 and 5 pounds. They claim that they keep a half a dozen or so and fillet them for supper. They say the taste is hard to beat. No matter which way you look at it, convict fish provide pretty good fishin' action.

The fish are being caught on the bottom, using dead shrimp, around the pilings in about 5 feet of water.

I know these guys are dedicated, because, other than fishin' in rotten weather, the license plate on the truck was FSH-HNT. I guess you can say that they are dedicated out-doors types. Take that you guys in the white coats — ha!

Heard this past week that Gulf South Research Institute has received a grant to study red fish. Hot diggity-de-dog! Looks like some good things are finally happening to ensure the future of fishin' in our area.

This week's wonderful wise words: You can't filet gnats. Too many bones.

Break out the Everglades gnat spray, turtle!

SCOWI presents 13th Ball

The Krewe of SCOWI presented its 13th Mardi Gras Ball on the eve of Valentine's Day with the theme, "Love, Love, Love."

The characters were lovers of years gone by, some from fiction and some from history.

Romeo and Juliet, whose love was doomed from the start, were portrayed by Pat LeFave and William Rotherham.

From the silent movie, "The Sheik," Bob Evans, was the title character and Lois Thibodeaux, his princess.

Napoleon Bonaparte wanted to conquer the world, but instead won Josephine's heart. Louis Foret was Napoleon, and Josephine was Linda Kemmerly.

A great epic of the Old South was "Gone With The Wind." The dashing Rhett Butler was portrayed by John Eidson, and Scarlett, Brenda Eidson.

History has it that Captain John Smith was due to be put to death, but Indian princess Pocahontas, daughter of the chief, saved his life by marrying him. Captain John Smith was Toxie Hall, and the princess, Lillie Burke.

The legendary outlaw of medieval England Robin Hood stole from the rich to give to the poor. Forrest Singer was Robin Hood, and his fair lady, Jackie Bufkin.

Narrator was Burt Barrett; music by J. E. Jamm's; set design, Buddy Williams; costumes, Josette's; and lighting, John Perkins.
